

To whom it may concern,

I have just been made aware of the new FCC regulations for radio stations. Before making any vote that would grant privileges to a few while taking privileges from many, I would ask that you hear my words.

K-love radio station is a way for me to focus my day around what God would have me do in my life. K-love is an audible reminder that the decisions I make each day are based on the values I have been taught by God through my family, peers, and the testimonies on the radio.

I find it discouraging that the FCC would mandate a Christian radio station to allow speakers, who may be against the vision statement of said radio station, time to speak on that radio station. I would compare that to allowing the president of Iran time to speak during the President of the United States state of the union address.

While I agree that the FCC is trying to protect the freedoms of everyone in this great country, I feel my rights as a Christian American are being sacrificed. When making decisions that effect Christian radio: please take into consideration the first amendment of the constitution grants "freedom of religion" to all Americans, including Christian Americans.

I thank you for all that you do to regulate what is said over the radio but would ask that you do not sacrifice my rights and the rights of million of other Christian Americans to please a select few.

Sincerely,

Luke Miller
